Dear Mr B [REDACTED]

We have recently become aware of your webpage found at <http://www.whileincare.info/blog/>.

Given that the website contains information about the private affairs of your mother and brother, and it is unclear if either have given or in fact can provide consent for such information to be published on the internet, we kindly request that the information is withdrawn with immediate effect.

Whilst we appreciate that you may be of the view you have the right to publish and share such information, given the issues over capacity and consent as well as the nature of the private information published regarding other individuals, we ask that the information is withdrawn on a voluntary basis by yourself. Whilst we note that you have made efforts to redact names, at present H [REDACTED] H [REDACTED] is still referenced in full which can lead to your brother being identified and in turn your mother.

Should you choose to ignore this request; the Council will consider its legal position which may result in legal action, namely an injunction being sought, due to the confidential nature of the information disclosed. In addition, if it is found that your mother and/or brother have not given consent to such information or images being shared then there is potential for us to explore breaches of their human rights.

Yours faithfully

[REDACTED]
